Guest Speaker
Mr. Shane McElroy

“SUSTAINABILITY OF ELECTRIC FRACTURING”

Shane is a self-described electric frac performance advisor whose objective it is to explain to operators and pressure pumping companies how their business performance, competitiveness and sustainability can be improved with adoption of electrification.

Shane has 30 years of experience from the US, Europe and the APAC regions in upstream oil and gas with various senior roles in operations offshore and onshore, business development, technology and commercialization, strategy and finance. He is from the deep South, a New Zealander, who has spent 18 years of his life in Norway and currently resides and works in Houston, Texas. His recent focus was developing, prototyping and selling the SEAM solution for Siemens which has exposed Shane to the pressure pumping industry, becoming a key focus for him and the business.

Shane holds a Bachelor of Engineering degree, a Master Degree in Engineering Management and he has a Master of Business Administration from Nanyang Technological University in Singapore and BI (honors) in Oslo.
